1. Applicant should note the changes to patent practice and procedure:
 - A) effective December 01, 1997 as published in the Federal Register, Vol 62, No. 197, Friday October 10, 1997; and
 - B) effective November 07, 2000 as published in the Federal Register, Vol 65, No. 54603, September 08, 2000.
2. The request filed on July 19, 2002 for a Continued Prosecution Application (CPA) under 37 CFR 1.53(d) based on parent Application No. 09/275,514 is acceptable and a CPA has been established. An action on the CPA follows.
3. The specification and drawings have not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification or drawings. Applicant should note the requirements of 37 CFR § 1.74, § 1.75, § 1.84(o,p(5)), § 1.121(a)-1.121(f) & § 1.121(h)-1.121(i).
4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. § 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 4.1 Claims 1, 9, 11, 12, 19, 24, 25, 26 & 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Thomas et al (5,425,100).
- 4.1.1 In regard to claims 1, 9, 11, 12, 19, 24, 25, 26 & 28, Thomas et al ('100) disclose the breaking up of content, e.g. a video and audio signal, into segments. The segments are then selectively protected by encoding/scrambling the segments. Finally, the encoded information is transmitted to the user. The user then may use the correct key to decrypt the encrypted segments of the transmitted content so that the user may use the content.
- 4.1.2 It is noted that in order for the segments of Thomas et al ('100) to be selectively encrypted, the system of Thomas et al ('100) must contain the necessary hardware and software to permit the user to perform the functions of selecting and storing the segments of content.

4.1.3 It is noted that the system of Thomas et al ('100) is computerized and hence requires a control program to be stored in a machine readable memory to control the operation of the system of Thomas et al ('100).

4.1.4 It is further noted that, since:

A) claims 1, 19 & 26 do not restrict the number of segments that are to be protected by encoding the segments to less than the entire group of segments that represent the content, then in regard to claims 1, 19 & 26 the entire content may be protected by encoding all of the segments.

B) claims 12 & 28 do not restrict the number of segments that are to be unprotected by decoding to less than the entire group of segments that represent the content, then in regard to claims 12 & 28 the entire content may be unprotected by decoding all of the segments.

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103 which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

(c) Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (f) or (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.

Art Unit: 3629

5.1 Claims 2-8, 10, 13-18, 20-23, 27 & 29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Thomas et al (5,425,100) as applied to claims 1, 9, 11, 12, 19, 24, 25, 26 & 28 and further in view of an obvious variations.

5.1.1 In regard to the type of encryption/scrambling used in claims 2, 6, 7, 13, 14, 21, 22 & 23, since Thomas et al ('100) requires the use of an type of encryption that is reversible and includes the use of a key, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time the invention was made that any suitable type of encryption could be used absent applicant's showing of new and unexpected results from the use of a particular type encryption. Further, since decrypting content that has not been encrypted would obscure the content, i.e. scramble the content, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time the invention was made that type of encryption used to encrypt one or more of the segments of the content must be provided and identified to the user in any suitable manner before the encryption may be reversed.

5.1.2 In regard to the nature of the key used in the encryption/scrambling as recited in claims 3, 4, 15, 20, 27 & 29, since Thomas et al ('100) requires the use of an type of encryption that is reversible and includes the use of a key, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time the invention was made that any suitable information could be used as the encryption key absent applicant's showing of new and unexpected results from the use of a particular type information as the encryption key.

5.1.3 In regard to the selective protection of claim 5, note the selective encryption of Thomas et al ('100).

5.1.4 In regard to the nature of the key used during playback as recited in claim 8, since Thomas et al ('100) requires the use of an type of encryption that is reversible and includes the use of a key to encrypt and decrypt the protected content, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time the invention was made that any suitable information could be used as the encryption key for encrypting and decrypting the content absent applicant's showing of new and unexpected results from the use of a particular type information as the encryption key.

6. The shorten statutory period of response is set to expire 3 (three) months from the mailing date of this Office action.
